STAND BY A PROVEN MAN

(From The Dalles Chronicle)

Certain radical prohibitionists, who carry their extreme views to the point of fanaticism, are attempting to create a prejudice against Nick Sinnott, our present congressman, here in his old home town, and have been circulating petitions against him and in favor of George L. Cleaver, the prohibition congressional candidate, from house to house.

These individuals are no true friends of temperance, or even of prohibition, and this unfair and fanatical attempt to injure and defeat a home man, so universally well liked and popular as Mr. Sinnott, without any just cause, will cost the cause of prohibition hundreds of votes in Wasco and surrounding counties, where Mr. Sinnott's friends will resent it without much regard to party.

One story which is being circulated is that Congressman Sinnott is "admittedly" a supporter of the liquor interests. This is absolutely false. Mr. Sinnott is NOT allied with the liquor interests and never has been; he has no interest or affiliation with them in any way. His personal habits have always been temperate and sober.

It is well known that Representative Sinnott has, on many occasions, gone on record publicly that he will vote on the national prohibition amendment in congress according to the way the majority of his constituents in his congressional district vote on the liquor question at the November election. What position could be more fair? Isn't that exactly what any man who is elected to office should do—represent the majority?

That Congressman Sinnott has consistently maintained this logical position all along, is shown by letters written to all of his constituents who have written to him during the past summer and fall inquiring as to his position on the national prohibition amendment. Mr. Sinnott promptly replied as follows:

We cite one instance which will suffice to show how frank and clear he has been in his position in this matter. On July 31 of this year, Mr. Albert E. White, of Freewater, Ore., a believer in national prohibition, wrote to Congressman Sinnott, asking his position on the national prohibition amendment. Mr. Sinnott promptly replied as follows:

"Washington, D. C., Aug. 7, 1914.

"Mr. Albert E. White,

"Freewater, Ore.,
"My dear sir:—I write to acknowledge receipt of yours of July 31st and desire to express my appreciation of your kindness in writing to me and sending the enclosed clipping. As a candidate for representative in congress on the Republican ticket, I do not feel it incumbent upon me to take part one way or the other in the issue involved in state prohibition in Oregon and I do not intend to do so.

"The national prohibition amendment, known as the Hobson amendment, will not be voted upon at this session of congress for the reasons set forth in the circular letter sent to members of the house by Congressman Hobson, a copy of which I herewith enclose. It will likely be voted upon at the next session commencing in December. When it comes up for a vote I expect, as the representative of the second Oregon district, to voice the views of the majority of my constituents in that district as expressed in the November election. I received my nomination on the platform which I filed with the secretary of state last March or April, copy of which I enclose. You will note that I therein state, 'if nominated and elected I will, during my term of office, represent the views of the majority of my constituents.'

"I intend to keep this promise for I feel that it is the duty of a representative in congress to represent the views of the majority of his constituents. Such representation is the very basis of our form of government. Kindly write me the name of the paper from which you took the clipping which you enclosed.

"I trust that my position will meet with your approval and that I may continue to have your valued support. With kindest regards, I remain,
"Very truly yours,
"N. J. Sinnott."

That this staunch prohibitionist, Mr. White, was entirely satisfied with this logical position of Congressman Sinnott, is best shown by the following extract from his letter of reply to Mr. Sinnott, dated August 11, 1914:

"I have your favor of recent date and note your position, which I think should be satisfactory to all your constituents, as it is to me. Since in the state fight you are representing nobody but yourself, it is your privilege, and as a party nominee perhaps it is your duty, to reserve your opinion on this issue. In the national fight where you represent thousands of us, it is unquestionably your duty to vote the sentiment of the majority of your constituents if that can be determined. While state and national prohibition are not identical issues, they are so closely related that I believe you would be justified in voting the former as an index to their probable view on the latter, and so I commend your decision to use the November vote of your constituents as a factor to determine your vote on the Shepherd-Hobson resolution."

Congressman Sinnott has written this sort of letter to so many constituents during the past months that the friends of Mr. Cleaver certainly must know Mr. Sinnott's position. When the friends of Cleaver circulate literature representing the congressman as "admittedly" a supporter of the liquor interests, it savors strongly of wilful misrepresentation.

Instead of losing votes, Mr. Sinnott will gain by this unwarranted attack. It is now a common expression among Democrats, since this attack has been made, that while they had previously intended to support the party ticket, they will now join in rebuking the individuals who are circulating these slanderous stories.

The majority of Prohibitionists, who stand for clean politics, for themselves, bitterly resent this controllable attempt to gain votes for the Prohibition candidate, and many a level-headed, fair-minded Prohibitionist, who knows the truth and respects Mr. Sinnott for the splendid man and congressman that he is, will switch his vote because of this sinister attack on "Nick."

It is universally agreed that Mr. Sinnott has made the best congressman the state of Oregon has had for many years. He has lost no opportunity to work for the best interests of the state, his congressional district and his home town.

Nick Sinnott is a pride and honor to Wasco county and The Dalles. It is too bad that men and women can be found here in his old town, where he was born and has lived from childhood, who have so little local pride and neighborly loyalty as to join in such a vicious and unfair campaign against a home man whose success is our success and whose honor is our honor.

CHAPMAN OFFERS FREE RIGHT OF WAY

W. S. Chapman, a member of a company that controls a large portion of the Columbia water front, last week telegraphed to Commodore O. C. Dean that he would give a free right of way for a road to a proposed footbridge across the Hood river. Commodore Dean is very much interested in this footbridge, the O.-W. R. & N. Co. having refused to allow pedestrians to cross the railway bridge. The distance to the ferry landing has been increased foot travelers having to go by way of the wagon bridge. Mr. Dean was in the city the latter part of last week interviewing city officers and asking that they give the matter their serious consideration.

Capt. O. D. Treiber has moved his landing place from the wharf of the Hood River-White Salmon ferry system to a point on the big sandbar north of the city. The new landing is more than a mile from the city and the pedestrian in reaching it must walk a good distance west of the point on this side of the river opposite Underwood.

Stop Those Early Bronchial Coughs

They hang on all winter if not checked, and pave the way for serious throat and lung diseases. Get a bottle of Foley's Honey and Tar Compound, and take it freely. Stops coughs and colds, heals raw inflamed throat, loosens the phlegm and is mildly laxative. Chas. T. Miller, Ed. Editor, Camblion, Ind., had bronchial trouble, got very hoarse, coughed constantly from tickling throat. He used only Foley's Honey and Tar Compound. Was entirely relieved. Wants others to know of Foley's Honey and Tar. Sold by Chas. N. Clarke.

Dan Tucker Up to Date

W. R. Winans

Old Dan Tucker was a fine old jay. He used to ride in a one horse shay. He'd go to town to see the show. And get some dope to point his nose.

Clatsaw Old Dan Tucker. Halo ketchum muckamuck.

Now young Dan Tucker is big and bad. And nothing like his fine old dad. For he goes to town on a one wheel bike.

And takes the girls on a glory hike.

Skookum tumtum Boston man. Hyas cultus young man Dan.

In a monoplane he takes a fly. And lunches on a wireless pie. He bought his wife an electric hen. That lays fried eggs for a dozen men.

And a fireless cooker that never lies. As it turns out beefsteak, cakes and pies.

And a graphophone with the voice of a bird. Singing sweetest songs that were ever heard.

Skookum tumtum Boston man, Hyas cultus young man Dan.

Old Dan Tucker was a fierce old cuss. When he went to war with a blunder-buss.

But young Dan Tucker makes them run. With a rapid fire from a silent gun.

Clatsaw! Old Dan Tucker. Halo ketchum muckamuck.

And he shoots up a port from a floating fort.

For any distance long or short; And he'll dance the dances, every one. From Grizzly Bear to Texas Tom.

Skookum tumtum Boston man. Hyas cultus young man Dan.

And his wife goes on a campaign hike. With her dander up on a hunger strike.

And "Votes For Women" is her battle cry.

And she swears she'd sooner live than die.

Hyas cultus Mrs. Tucker. Halo cunctus momuck supper.

Oh, the apple's red and Mt. Hood's white. And Hood River valley's out of sight; For there's something started every day.

And young Dan Tucker's come to stay. Hyak, hyak, young Dan Tucker. May-be-so ketchum sitkum supper.

If the child starts in its sleep, grinds its teeth, while sleeping, picks at the nose, has a bad breath, fickle appetite, pale complexion, and dark rings under the eyes, it has worms; and as long as they are in the intestines, that child will be sickly. White's Cream Vermifuge clears out the worms, strengthens the stomach and bowels and puts the little one on the road to health and cheerfulness. Price 25c per bottle. Sold by Chas. N. Clarke.

D. I. Stone Grows Fine Grapes

Some of the finest grapes seen in Hood River county this year were grown by D. I. Stone, whose place is on the road to Lost Lake on the headwaters of the West Fork of Hood river. Mr. Stone has a three year old Diamond vine that produced 64 bunches of luscious grapes.

"All products have done well in our remote community this year," said Mr. Stone, who was in the city the latter part of last week interviewing the county court relative to a road to Lost Lake. "Our corn has matured nicely and has grown to a fine size. Apple trees have done as well as in any other part of the valley.

Tickling in the throat, hoarseness, loss of voice, indicate the need of Ballard's Horehound Syrup. It eases the lungs, quiets the cough and restores health in the bronchial tubes. Price 25c, 50c and $1.00 per bottle. Sold by Chas. N. Clarke.

The Auto in the Field

It is quite a common sight in Oregon to see farmers drive to the harvest field in automobiles. It takes a solemn sum of money to buy an automobile and it takes good roads, as well as gasoline, to run them.

A joy ride in the harvest fields of this state is one of the most exhilarating experiences that is available on this continent and one that would charm a tourist and convince a homesicker. A speedy lined with growing crops and blooded stock is a landscape that one seldom tours in a life time. In mapping out automobile routes the Oregon harvest fields should be given prominent position. Why not "See Rural America First" campaign?

It Always Does the Work. "I like Chamberlin's Cough Remedy better than any other," writes R. E. Roberts, Homer City, Pa. "I have taken it on and off for years and it never failed to give desired results." For sale by all dealers.
